LeishVet is pleased to announce the First International Congress on Animal Leishmaniosis (ALIVE) in both online and presential formats in Málaga, Spain

The LeishVet Scientific Committee will celebrate the First International Congress on Animal Leishmaniosis, in a hybrid format, from the iconic city of Málaga from 31st March to 2nd April, 2022. The event will bring together the top experts in animal leishmaniosis as well as all of the members of LeishVet.

The first edition of ALIVE (Animal Leishmaniosis International Veterinary Event) will have a novel Scientific Program with two streams: one focused on research and the other on clinical diagnosis and treatment for this important zoonosis. Furthermore, the participants will have the unique opportunity to join Speakers and members of LeishVet in round table events, to discuss real clinical cases and other aspects related to the epidemiology, diagnosis, clinical treatment and prevention of animal leishmaniosis.

The event will take place in the Hotel Meliá Costa del Sol, with an unbeatable location, on the beach in Torremolinos, 7 km from the International Airport and 12 km from Málaga's central station. The hotel has taken all additional cleaning and health measures for Covid-19 to guarantee the safety of all those attending.

For those that cannot assist presentially, this unique event will also be available online.
